

You need a plan. An export compliance plan. Whether you are working on an amazing new service or a brand new product, it is important to know the rules so that Uncle Sam doesn't come knocking on your door. An effective export compliance plan reflects a clear understanding of your responsibilities under U.S. export laws and regulations, including classifying your products correctly, knowing who your customers are and complying with any applicable restrictions or prohibitions on where your goods can be sent, what they can be used for and in what capacity.

We want to help you facilitate which markets to enter and why they work so well for your service/product. By collaborating with the Department of Commerce and the SBA, we are able to find your partners that will be integral in your push into foreign territories. It may be a daunting task, but we understand that the upside of a push can create ancillary markets that will take your business to the next level.

We focus on the following so you can put your mind at ease: payments, language, selecting test countries, international shipping, duties and taxes, customer service, and more.